

Sharing or Selling Pills?

If you provide someone with prescription drugs and they experience harm, you can be held responsible!

Sharing or selling prescription pills is dangerous and against the law! Prescription medications are controlled substances which are meant to be taken under medical supervision. Sharing pills, even with people who have a similar medical condition, can be dangerous and is illegal.

Have leftover pills you need to get rid of?

It is important to get rid of any prescription medications you are no longer using to prevent abuse! Visit www.FDA.gov and search “drug disposal” for guidelines or to find a drug take-back program in the area.
